Four Allied Armies Hammer Relentlessly In Icy Weather at Germans' Ardennes Salient

7TH HOLDS AT BITCHE

BULLETIN
With The U. S. First Army, Belgium, Jan. 10.—(P)—The Second Armored division captured Sannes, three miles northeast of Laroche today, after 30 hours of the most violent tank battle yet to flare on the northern flank of the Belgian bulge.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press War Editor
Four Allied armies hammered relentlessly in icy weather today at the Germans' Ardennes salient and squeezed its waist to nine miles as the Nazis began a retreat from the western tip of the Belgian bulge.

On the southern flank of the salient the U. S. Third Army advanced along a 20-mile front from north of Bastogne to east of Wiltz, gaining up to 1½ miles, and the 101st Airborne Division pushed to within 4½ miles of Houffalize, German hub in the heart of the bulge. At the same time U. S. First Army troops on the north beat within three miles of the vital Houffalize-St. Vith road.

Meanwhile, in the southern sector of the western front, enemy disintegrating attacks probed to within 14 miles south of Strasbourg on the French First Army front, while the U. S. Seventh Army battered back into the Rhine bridgehead town of Remagen, and others bombed railroads at Neustadt and Rastatt.

Five German planes were shot down Tuesday, and one American fighter was lost.

Weather curtailed tactical air support for the U. S. First and Ninth Armies, pressing on the western flank of the salient, the British, beating steadily from the west, and the U. S. Third from the south, although some aid was given the Seventh Army behind German lines. But hundreds of U. S. heavy bombers took off from ice-coated runways in Britain against targets in western Germany after a one-day lull.

German forces were reported today retreating from the western tip of their Ardennes salient, in what a staff officer said "appears to be the start of a measured step-by-step withdrawal," while on their northern flank Americans driving through five-foot snowdrifts pushed within three miles of the vital Houffalize-St. Vith highway.

The Germans in the west withdrew a mile or more on a five-mile front (Turn to Page Nine)

Red Assaults On Budapest Are Increasing

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Moscow, Jan. 10.—(P)—Red army assaults within Budapest were reported increasing in fury today while German relief columns, now menaced by a vast outflanking drive north of the Danube bend, had failed in attempts to break through to the besieged Garrison.

In the 13th day of street fighting, the Russians claimed control of more than half of the once beautiful Hungarian capital.

Northwest beyond the Danube Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's armor and infantry were making rapid strides toward Komarom, northbank communications hub which was the one of the pinpoints for the German rescue offensive.

In advance of three miles or more, his troops yesterday captured the riverbank town of Iza, little more than three and one-half miles east of Komarom, and half a dozen other communities to the northeast in a wheeling movement that would carry around the big German base and on toward Bratislava, the Austrian border and eventually to Vienna, 87 miles away.

The Russian communiqué said the Germans were throwing in strong reinforcements to stem this westward Soviet tide, but it declared the Red army still was advancing.

"Voice of Freedom" Is Back On the Air

By the Associated Press
The Voice of Freedom, which has not broadcast from Luzon since the fall of Corregidor, came back on the air today shortly after Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion of Luzon, the man Philippine island.

The broadcast, monitored by the Federal Communications Commission, repeated MacArthur's first communiqué on the Luzon invasion.

Attached to MacArthur's headquarters, the Voice of Freedom's last Luzon broadcast to the American public from Corregidor a few hours before the Japanese took over.

1,100 Planes Stage Daring Daylight Raids

London, Jan. 10.—(P)—Eleven hundred U. S. Liberators and Flying Fortresses bombed bridges, airfields, and road junctions behind the Belgian bulge and along the Rhine today in a daring daylight raid supported by only 300 fighter escorts.

The U. S. Eighth Air Force heavy bombers braced icy runways and flew through snowstorms in delivering their tactical attack with 4,000 tons of bombs.

It was the 17th operation by the U. S. Eighth Air Force's big bombers in 19 days.

A small force of U. S. Ninth Air Force B-26 marauders bombed a railroad bridge at Rinnthal, eight miles from Landau, yesterday. On the route supplying Germans attacking U. S. Seventh Army positions above Strasbourg, a few fighterbombers hit at a bridge over the Rhine-Rhone canal, and others bombed railroads at Neustadt and Rastatt.

Five German planes were shot down Tuesday, and one American fighter was lost.

St. Nazaire Area To Be Evacuated

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Jan. 10.—(P)—Negotiation of a truce for evacuation of more French civilians from the St. Nazaire area indicates the Germans have no intention of surrendering the pockets they hold along the French Atlantic coast—and that the Allies have little hope of their speedy annihilation.

About 100,000 Germans hold these pockets. They are remnants of regiments shattered in Normandy, of the garrisons of Brest, Bordeaux and other places, and of flak battalions augmented by U-boat crews and other odd-lots.

Two trainmen killed as boiler explodes

Rockville, Md., Jan. 10.—(P)—Two trainmen were killed, but none of the passengers were injured early today when the locomotive boiler of a Baltimore and Ohio special passenger train exploded 22 miles west of this suburban Washington community.

None of the 13 passenger cars overturned and passengers, including military personnel, were only shaken up by the wreck. The car next to the locomotive was the only one to leave the rails.

150,000 TO BE INDUCTED EACH MONTH

Undersecretary of War Tells Congress 900,000 Men Will Be Needed Before July

ADVISES SERVICE ACT

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told congress today that inductions for the armed forces for the first six months of 1945 will total 900,000 men, as a minimum.

On this basis, the induction rate would be 150,000 men monthly—about twice the rate previously indicated for the early months of this year. The war department recently indicated that army and navy were taking about 60,000 a month in late 1944 and that this would be jumped to around 80,000 this month.

Urging quick enactment of national service legislation, Patterson advised the house military committee that only through some form of national service could the manpower needs for the war effort be met during the next six months.

These needs, he declared, include 900,000 men for the armed services and 700,000 others for war production and war-supporting activities.

"The only complete and adequate legislation," he said, would be national war service legislation "of the most comprehensive nature." Such legislation, he stated, would shorten the war and minimize the loss of life.

Pending enactment of an overall statute, Patterson said, the war department favored "work or fight" legislation for all men between the ages of 18 and 45. The committee is considering such a bill.

Patterson said "it will be necessary" within the next six months to induct men between the ages of 25 and 30 "in large number from industry," adding that the needs of the army and the navy were for men under 30. To replace these men upon their induction, he said, some way must be found to shift older men into war jobs.

The legislation which Patterson endorsed as a substitute for a general national service law if congress will not approve that, would subject to immediate induction any man between the ages of 18 and 45 who leaves a job without draft board approval.

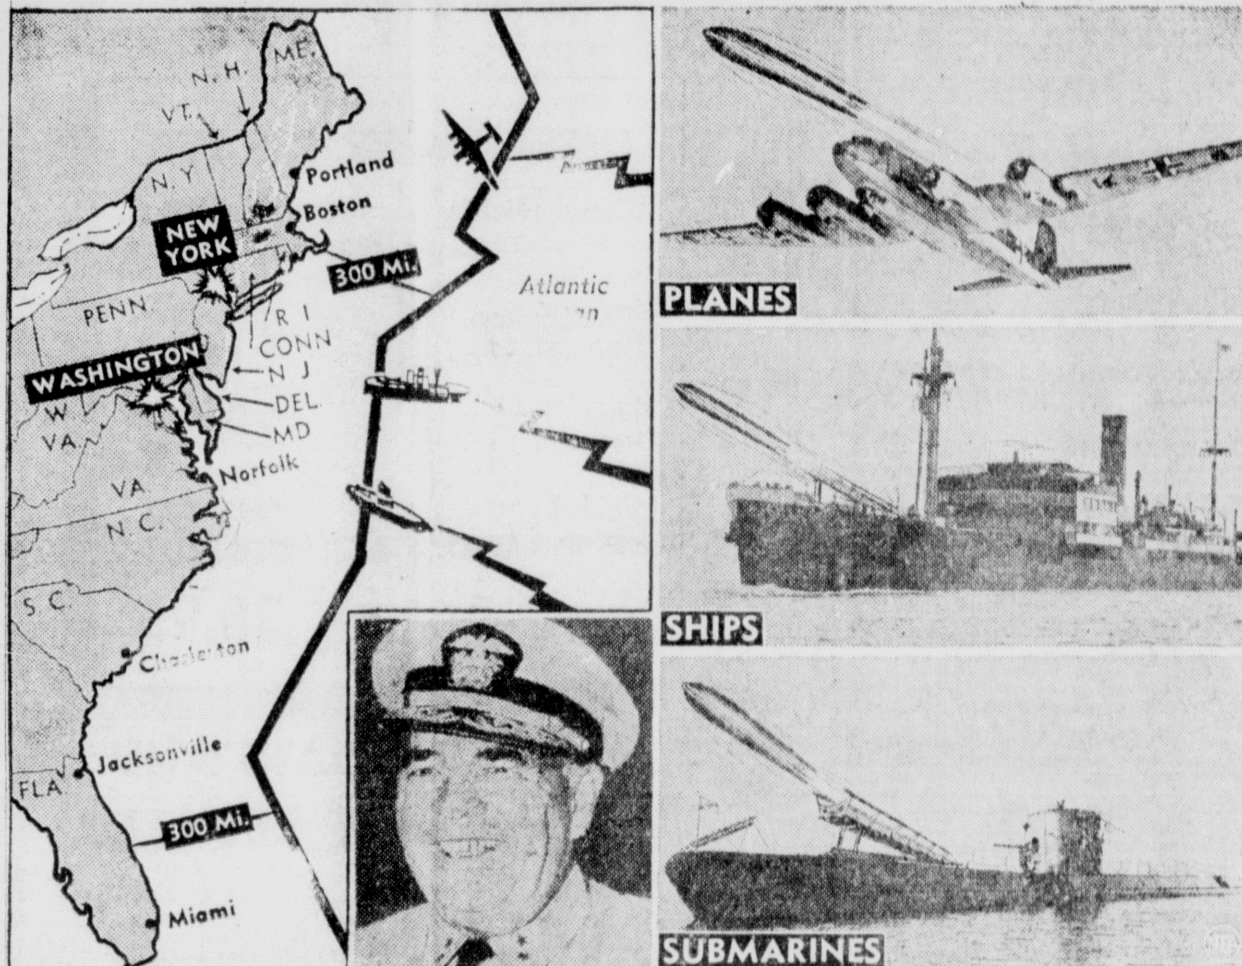

Those physically fit would be used for regular military duty, the others going into special service units to perform what Patterson said would be "unattractive" assignments.

Ralph A. Bard, undersecretary of the navy, likewise recommended general national service legislation but backed the "work or fight" measure for men in the 18-45 group as a possible substitute.

Congress tackled officially today the job of pushing hundreds of thousands of men into essential war jobs and thousands of women into military nursing.

As spokesmen for the army, the navy, the War Production Board and Selective Service were called before the house military committee to back "work or fight" legislation aimed at deferred draft-age men. Chairman May (D-Ky.) introduced another bill making every registered nurse between the ages of 18 and 45 subject to induction.

How Nazis Can Buzz-Bomb Atlantic Coast

The photo-chart above illustrates the warning that "we know and feel that within the next 30 to 60 days the Germans will make some buzz-bomb attempt on New York or Washington or other coastal cities," issued by Adm. Jones H. Ingram (inset), C-in-C, Atlantic Fleet. Bombs could be launched from long-range planes, surface ships or submarines anywhere within a 300-mile radius of the coast.

Wreckage of Missing Airliner Is Sighted

Los Angeles, Jan. 10.—(P)—The wreckage of an American Airlines plane carrying 21 passengers and three crew members was sighted today about five miles north of Lockheed air terminal, Burbank, a company spokesman announced.

The debris was sighted by a control tower operator at the airport through field glasses. The scene where the wreck occurred was in the vicinity of La Crescenta, a foothill town north of here.

No indication of whether anyone had survived the crash could be discerned, the spokesman added.

Cold Wave Is Abating Over Plains States

By the Associated Press
A cold wave which yesterday numbed a wide section of the midwest moved into the eastern seaboard and down to the gulf and south Atlantic states today.

Sub-zero temperatures and near zero readings were general throughout northern New York State, the New England sector and Pennsylvania, while below freezing marks were reported as far south as central Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

The severe cold weather had abated over most of the plains states and in other sections of the midwest except Indiana and Ohio.

The weather bureau predicted the cold wave in the eastern and southern sections would not be broken until tomorrow.

Bitter cold tumbled temperatures to zero and below in Pennsylvania today. Forecasters predicted the weather would moderate tomorrow.

The cold wave, coming from the west, sent the mercury to four below at Clarion, in the northwest. Hazleton, in the hard cold fields, reported one below.

No details on the parachutists were available immediately.

Strategy of Latest Moves In Philippines Is Outlined

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—General MacArthur's spectacular return to Luzon, after three years of dogged island warfare, at last places American bayonets in the jugular vein of the Japanese empire. As the strategy of the Pacific war is now sized up in military quarters here, there are two main objectives in the invasion of the main island of the Philippines.

1. To gain air and naval bases which will command the enemy's vital sea lanes between the Japanese homeland and the rich stolen empire in Malaya and the Dutch Indies. As soon as Luzon can be sufficiently conquered to get these bases in operation it should be virtually impossible for the Japanese to carry on any sort of transport through the south China sea.

2. To provide a jumping off place for further moves against the enemy probably including both a thrust across the China sea to the Asiatic mainland and an amphibious campaign against Japan itself.

How soon these objectives may be realized remains a subject of speculation here. The fighting on (Turn to Page Nine)

President Is Free of Prior Commitments

Washington, Jan. 10.—(P)—President Roosevelt has assured congressional leaders he will go into the forthcoming "big-3" conference free of prior commitments on Europe's tangled political problems.

With senatorial critics complaining of this part of his handling of foreign affairs, the president told his legislative lieutenants nothing promised at Quebec or Teheran will tie his hands in attempts to reach an agreement on such questions as Poland's future borders.

The president was reported determined to carry a closed hand into the big three conference. He would not expand now, it was said, on the exposition of foreign policy laid down in his state of the union message last week.

In that he admitted concern about the Greek and Polish situation. He said he had obligations to exiled governments, to underground leaders and to "our major Allies who came much nearer the shadows than we did."

His attitude was reflected in the sharp defense of his policies offered by administration supporters in advance of the no-holds-barred debate which was expected in the senate today.

Sheffield Boy Listed Killed During Mission

It is learned today from Sheffield that Earl Jefferson has received word in a message from the War Department that his son, 2nd Lt. Russell E. Jefferson, was killed in action over Italy on July 6, 1944, supplementing a previous report that he was missing in action.

Lt. Jefferson entered service January 1, 1943, had his basic training at Camp Croft, S. C., and aviation cadet training at bases in Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida, New Jersey and Washington, D. C.

He received his wings and commission at the Marianna Air Base in Florida in January, 1944, and went overseas in June of the same year. He was assigned to the 525th Fighter Squadron in Italy and at the time of his death was engaged in a bombing and strafing mission over Italy, piloting an Invader light bomber.

Lt. Jefferson received his education in the schools of Sheffield and at Gettysburg College. Before entering the service he was employed by the Daystrom Corporation in Olean, N. J.

Charge of Murder Filed Against Boy

Scranton, Jan. 10.—(P)—A charge of murder was filed against 13-year-old Myron Semunich yesterday by Lackawanna County District Attorney James F. Brady, who said that the boy had admitted the slaying of Mae Barrett, 9, whose mutilated body was found in nearby Vandling, Jan. 3.

President Judge Will Leach committed the boy to the county prison pending grand jury action after Myron's court-appointed attorneys entered a plea of innocent.

Only two witnesses were heard during the 45-minute arraignment—Dr. Paul E. Kubasko, coroner, who told of the findings of his inquest, and State Police Corporal Henry Daubenspeck, who testified regarding a 20-page confession which the boy is said to have signed yesterday.

Irving Epstein, who, with William Murphy, was appointed to represent the boy, declared that in Pennsylvania no person under 14 is considered capable of murder under existing conditions. If a conviction on that charge is obtained, he said, it will set a precedent in the state.

TANK-LED SPEARHEADS DRIVE TO A CLIMACTIC SHOWDOWN FIGHT FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Twenty-Four Hours After Initial Landings Made Against Light Opposition, Sixth Army Pours Ashore Over Sand Dunes of Luzon

LOSSES OFFICIALLY REPORTED AS VERY LIGHT

By the Associated Press
General MacArthur's Headquarters on Luzon, Philippines—Tens of thousands of American troops, landing with Gen. Douglas MacArthur yesterday in Lingayen Gulf, on western Luzon island, drove tank-led spearheads south across flatlands toward Manila today in the climactic showdown fight for the Philippines.

Manila was less than 120 miles away through low, dry country excellently suited for the enormous quantities of mechanized equipment landed with the veteran fighting men from an 800-ship convoy which stretched out for 70 miles.

Twenty-four hours after the initial landings, made against amazingly light opposition at 9:30 a. m., the Sixth Army Yanks were still pouring ashore and over the same crescent of sand dunes the Japanese invaders used three years ago. Landing losses were officially reported as very light.

General MacArthur, wading ashore with an assault wave, established headquarters on the island where his outnumbered men fought valiantly in defeat at Bataan and Corregidor.

With the support of a blistering dawn naval and air barrage of shells, bombs and rockets, Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army veterans landed along 15 miles of Lingayen gulf, found the beaches virtually cleared of defenders and quickly pushed inland.

The beachhead extended from near Lingayen city on the southern shore eastward to San Fabian.

The low American casualties refuted enemy warnings that an invasion of Luzon would be a costly undertaking from the start. Japanese defenses ashore were woefully inadequate. Some trenches were only a foot deep.

(Broadcasts from the scene said the Japanese were so frantic with rage some swam out and threw hand grenades at the American ships, "like throwing a snowball at a hot stove.")

Of momentous importance in lightening a military noose on Japan, the invasion was orderly. There was no bloody battle on the beaches. The Americans merely ploughed up the invasion ground with a fearsome preliminary barrage of hundreds of tons of meal and swarmed ashore calmly. At one point only 11 snipers could be found in an hour's search.

Fully 3,000 small amphibious craft, loaded with troops, nestled near the transports until the fearsome curtain of naval gunfire and rockets lifted. Then the landing waves headed toward beaches well churned up by American metal. Before the landing, the huge invasion armada weathered the most deadly air attack the Japanese could mount dating back to Jan. 6. The enemy had the convoy under observation from the time it started, but waited until it approached Luzon past enemy-held island before attacking with the fury of desperation.

American interceptor pilots and antiaircraft guns knocked down at least 79 planes. MacArthur's communiqué acknowledged some loss and damage, but a high Seventh Fleet officer said it did not impair the efficiency of the striking force.

A week of warship shelling by Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet and air raids on Japan's entire inner defense perimeter, cutting deeply into the enemy's air-craft, preceded the invasion. These took in the Kuriles, Japan, the Telegrams were received in Warren today announcing the death of George W. Metzgar at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday evening at 8:45. The body will be brought to this city for interment in the family plot and the funeral party will leave Tulsa on Thursday and funeral services will be held Monday at 3 o'clock from the Lutz Funeral Home.

Mr. Metzgar was born July 15, 1884, at York, but spent most of his life in this community. "Uncle George" Metzgar as he was widely known in this city for many years was connected with the Pennsylvania railroad here. An engineer from young manhood he lost both legs in the service of the railroad. For years he filled the position of station master here and formed a wide acquaintance. A number of years ago he went to Tulsa to make his home with his daughter, where he passed away. A more extended obituary will appear tomorrow.

Situation At Lingayen Is Reversed From December '41

By the Associated Press
A look at Lingayen gulf today and in December, 1941:

Gen. Douglas MacArthur disgorged tens of thousands of invasion Yanks in a 15-mile area extending from San Fabian to Lingayen, Tuesday, Jan. 9.

Dec. 22, 1941, the Japanese brought in 80,000 troops which were put ashore to the north of San Fabian at Agoo and Santo Tomas. That was a beachhead of less than 10 miles at points further from Manila than the present Yank beachheads.

MacArthur's convoy consisted of 800 ships, with the Japanese reports telling of well over 100 transports in the group.

The Japanese went to Lingayen in 1941 with scores of little 150-man transports, some of which were sunk by U. S. planes enroute. Dispatches from Luzon on the very day of Tuesday's landings told of Yank troops penetrating deeply inland, still probing for the enemy's major land forces.

Two days after the 1941 landings of the Japanese there, a United States communiqué said "fighting continues near Lingayen gulf where the main invasion effort is being made."

Canada-Russia Air Highway Hums With U. S. Planes

American fighter planes pack the strip at Ladd Field, Fairbanks, Alaska, waiting to be ferried to Siberia, thence to the Russian fighting front by Red Army pilots. Inset map shows the Northwest Staging Route, a chain of airports from Edmonton, Alberta, to Fairbanks. Over this vital aerial highway more than 5000 U. S.-built planes have been ferried to Russia. The first ones passed through in September, 1942, immediately saw action against the Germans at Stalingrad. Canada pioneered and built the route and the U. S. provided installations and extensions for which the Dominion will pay this country more than $39,000,000.

natal and one sunshine lamp case, these were typed as follows: Acute medical 4, chronic medical 21 and new born 3.

A total of 131 visits indicated 119 for nursing service, 5 for social service and welfare purposes, 4 for new born babies, 2 calls on Sunday and one at night. Added to these were 51 office and telephone calls and two sunshine lamp treatments.

Besides this, she assisted with four weekly child health clinics at which there were 4 new babies and one new case of pre-school age. 9 babies who had previously visited the clinic and four returning cases in the older group. Six home visits in child welfare interests brought this total to 24.

In the annual report, all donations for the year were acknowledged with thanks, including 20 nighties, 12 blankets and one and one-half dozen diapers given in the month of December.

In the yearly report, 122 new cases brought the total assisted to 371, of which 261 were chronic medical, 52 acute medical, 13 surgical, 6 tuberculosis, 11 prenatal, 4 deliveries, 19 postnatal, 12 new-born and 3 sunshine lamp cases.

Besides 612 office and telephone calls, Miss Horan reported 27 sunshine lamp treatments in the year just concluded, 1,511 nursing visits, 67 for social service and welfare, 4 assists with deliveries, 6 prenatal visits, 11 for postnatal care, 28 for attention to the newborn, 14 night visits and 18 on Sundays.

A total of 644 cases were handled at the 51 child health clinics attended during the year, 80 of these being new babies, 324 babies returning, 25 new pre-school age children and 143 returning. Toxoid was given in 25 instances, two vaccinations done and 45 child welfare home visits made.

The nurse assisted, also, with two crippled children's clinics, attended three Warren Relief Association board meetings and one relief meeting at Sharon, three Healing Art meetings, took one child to the State Hospital and investigated one case for the Selective Service draft board.

Putting Your Best Face Forward

Photos, Glamour Magazine

STYLISTS have paid a lot of attention to fitting faces and glasses so that with a little thought a woman can harmonize her spectacles, hairdo and make-up so as to put her best face forward.

If you have a heart-shaped face, here are the wrong and the right ways to enhance its charm, as conceived by Eddie Senz of Fifth Avenue, New York City, famous make-up stylist, in cooperation with the Better Vision Institute.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE GUARD

Charles W. Johnson, 2d lieutenant, Infantry, has prepared the following interesting information regarding Company I, 16th Infantry, Pennsylvania State Guard, this city, which is recommended for serious consideration by every reader:

On January 16, 1942, the first Warren Unit of the Pennsylvania Reserve Defense Corps was formed under the command of 2nd Lt. Arthur F. Dickinson. It was comprised of one platoon. This platoon was a part of "A" Company, 3rd Infantry, with Company headquarters in Oil City, which place had two platoons. The company was commanded by Capt. Earl D. McCrea. On May 12, 1942, "B" Company, 3rd Infantry, was formed with one platoon and Company Headquarters in Warren. One platoon in Bradford, and one platoon in Kane. This company was commanded by Capt. Arthur F. Dickinson. On December 1, 1943, the State organization was redesignated the Pennsylvania State Guard in lieu of the Pennsylvania Reserve Defense Corps. On December 1, 1943, "I" Company, 16th Infantry, was formed in Warren and exists as such at the present time. In this reorganization the 3rd Battalion was formed with one company in Warren, also Battalion Headquarters. One company in Kane and one company in Bradford. Company "I" being commanded by Capt. James V. Scalise and the 3rd Battalion by Major Arthur F. Dickinson.

The majority of the people in Warren have little understanding of the duties of the Pennsylvania State Guard. These duties are mainly in the interest of internal security which means the maintenance of law and order in cases of disasters caused by natural causes, i. e. floods, etc.; also internal strife, such as strikes and the depredation of mobs. Let it be said here and now that this organization shall not be used as strike breakers. Its primary interest being the maintenance of law and order. Being a State organization, the activities, and authority of the Pennsylvania State Guard is confined to the State of Pennsylvania. In case of a national emergency, and by presidential order, the organization could be Federalized and used as regular troops.

In as much as the Pennsylvania State Guard is primarily interested in internal security it is therefore natural that the training program lays stress on procedures which pertain to such. These consist of the psychology of crowds and mobs. The forming and use of proper formations. The use of, and protection against chemical agents. The care and use of modern fire-arms. In addition the personnel of the Guard receives the same basic training as any regular member of the armed forces. This training which is given in one, two hour periods each week, is supplemented by a summer encampment of from 8 to 15 days each year.

Many young men in the 17-18 age group, who have been members of the Pennsylvania State Guard and were inducted into the armed forces of the U. S. A., have found the training they received a great help. In many cases it has meant promotions for them. To the men of 35-50 years of age who for reasons of employment, family, or physical disability of some small nature the Pennsylvania State Guard offers them a golden opportunity to serve their country and to participate in active service and take pride in doing just a little bit more than the other fellow.

Company "I", 16th Infantry, drills every Monday night at the State Armory, Hickory street, Warren, Pennsylvania, from 7:30 till 9:30. Men from the ages of 17 to 50 are urged to enlist, also veterans of World War I and II, who, because of training and experience, stand a very good chance of gaining ratings in the Pennsylvania State Guard. See Lt. Everett Carlson, recruit officer, in the orderly room of the Armory on Monday or Thursday evenings. He will be pleased to answer any questions you may wish to ask.

Let's have a lot of community spirit and good will back of Warren's military organization.

JOIN UP!

The word for which we've been waiting since Bataan and "The March of Death"—MacArthur has landed on Luzon and the pivotal battle of the war of the Pacific has been joined. As was intimated in news dispatches Tuesday with consummate audaciousness the American commander has flung an army ashore on Lingayen gulf near the same spot employed by the victorious Japanese when they invaded the Philippines three years ago. He hit straight for the strategically logical point of entrance, as Nippon's own General Homma, conqueror of the Philippines, predicted the Americans would have to do.

Uncle Sam is beating us all to it with spring cleaning. Don't forget to take care of your income tax report.

These days remind many old timers in Warren of the good old horse and cutter days. They "sleigh" us.

Penned lines help a lot on the front lines. Write to the men and women in the service today!

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — No matter what trend the war takes from now on, civilians are going to get very little relief from shortages in 1945, if any at all.

Only a complete collapse of Germany (which seems far more distant now than it did a few months ago) coupled with a great narrowing of the Pacific war, could go far in relieving the home-front in the next 12 months. This is the general opinion of government officials in a score of agencies and departments.

It is said here freely now, for example, that there's no use to even think about new cars, electric irons, washing machines, heavy duty tires, radios or dozens of other things for months to come.

THE food situation, in case of sudden victory, would change rapidly, but not overnight. Just to cite a few of the examples estimated by War Food Administration, OPA and Agriculture Department officials:

The pinch on spuds will come again in the spring and probably be worse than it was last spring, especially if the black marketeers get into the picture in advance.

The butter shortage is here to stay for some time and the average per capita consumption may have to drop another half a pound per year under 1944, to somewhere around 11.5 pounds.

Sugar may be scarcer than it was this year—perhaps as much as seven or eight pounds per person scarcer, which would be a cut of around 10 per cent.

The coffee situation is in delicate balance. Exporting countries want higher prices, may be able to get it as the number of liberated nations increases. If that happens, the U. S. can only hike its prices or watch our supplies run into other channels.

CANNED goods will continue far short of demands, and those canned commodities not found on the grocery store shelves now probably won't return before another year.

The supply of chickens will demand, far behind the demand, far behind the demand. The overall consumption of meats will have to undergo another slash, but beef will be slightly more plentiful and the quality better. Pork consumption will have to undergo a sharp cut, and bacon probably will be even harder to get.

Cigaret manufacturers, testifying before the Senate investigating committee, were generally of the opinion that the situation will get worse before it gets better, unless smokers sharply curtail the puffs on fags. There's no great mystery about the shortage of cigarettes. In spite of greatly increased supplies in the last few years, the demand has far outstripped them.

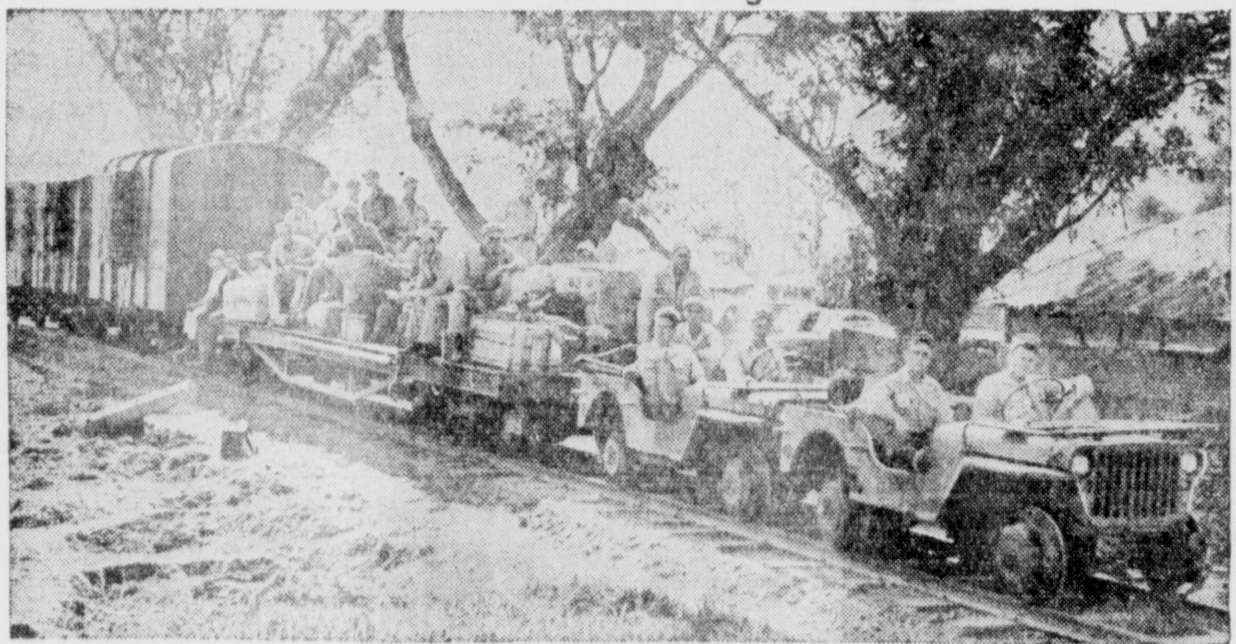

In general, don't waste into the new year with any expectation that those things you've been wanting will be easier to find.

Graebner held the third position with a 212.

Mexico contains breeding grounds for millions of parrots, which natives value highly as food.

There are no true cedar trees native to North America.

There's Still a War on 'Forgotten Front'

While the Western Front drama snarls the big headlines, the war still goes on in Burma, where Allied forces, including American-trained and led Chinese troops, are gradually forcing the Japs out of the country. Photos above, taken near recently recaptured Bhamo, show, top, a unique jeep tandem, serving as a "locomotive" to haul freight cars filled with supplies; left, below, knowing that Japs often feign death only to have a grenade when they get the chance, a combat cameraman rolls over the body of a Nip killed on the banks of the Irrawaddy River; below, right: Frank Cancellare, NEA-Acme Newspictures' war correspondent, who took the photos, sits atop a tank manned by a Chinese and an American. Cancellare's camera has covered the China-Burma-India theater for 22 months.

Bonds Over America

OHIO'S OLDEST BUILDING

Marietta and the Ohio Land Company building, oldest structure in the state, link France and America and both nations' love of liberty. When the first settlers arrived on the shore of the Muskingum River from New England in 1738, they named the settlement in honor of Queen Marie Antoinette whose soldiers had fought and died gallantly to win freedom for this Nation in the Revolutionary War. The city is still small but its tradition inspires Ohio men on all fronts to invest in War Bonds until it is assured by victory. U. S. Treasury Department

WHY QUINTUPLETS use this great rub for SORE THROAT COUGHS and COLDS

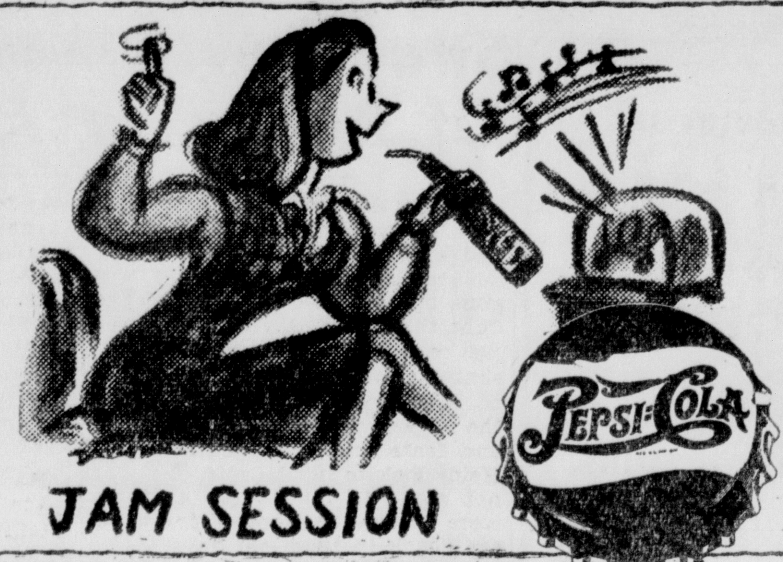

Wonderful for Grown-Ups, Too!
Ever since they were tiny tots—when ever the Quintuplets catch cold—their chests, throats and backs are immediately rubbed with Musterole.

Musterole gives such blessed prompt relief because it's more than just an ordinary "salve." It's what so many Doctors and Nurses call a modern counter-irritant. It not only relieves coughs, sore throats, aching chest muscles due to colds, makes breathing easier—but it actually helps break up congestion in upper bronchial tract, nose and throat.

And Musterole is so much easier to apply than a mustard plaster. White, Stainless. Just rub it on! "No Fuss. No muss with Musterole!"

IN 3 STRENGTHS: Children's Mild Musterole, Regular, and Extra Strong.

SOMEHOW or other, with all its wartime theme, the film version of Moss Hart's and the Army Air Forces' stage play, "Winged Victory," does not seem to have the topical, or even the emotional, impact that the original Broadway production possessed. Granted that there were some near-maudlin bits in the original legitimate effort that were fashioned of the most obvious ham, it was tasty dramaturgical ham and came off as excellent theater, well produced and exceptionally well acted.

The movie version may have lost some of its brilliant immediacy because training programs are not still intriguing. The tactical problems of Europe and the Pacific are nearer to our enthusiasts than the question of whether or not this or that young cadet. Even as late as a year ago, when the Air Forces presented "Winged Victory," these were trenchant slices of many a family discussion. Now the training is over. The war is at least at its middle point. Training, alongside the battle slogs, is comparative trivia.

THE actual film, taken as mere entertainment or even as an educational movie with romantic and dramatic overtones, does not seem to be as well presented as was the original on the stage of the 44th Street Theater. Some of the most moving episodes of the original have not carried their vitality and nearness to martial matters over to the other entertainment idiom.

Darryl F. Zanuck and 20th Century-Fox have given their movie a big production. They have transferred some of the scenes which were effective enough on the stage to the unlimited scope—particularly in the sequence where one flier crashes and the rest wait for each plane to land so they can determine which of their buddies has washed out—nothing is accomplished even approaching the driving emotional sock of the scene as played on the stage.

GEORGE CUKOR directed. He has provided touches which occasionally are moving, and not infrequently pull all the stops. At such points, it is as if he has utilized every possible weapon in attacking the tear ducts. Sometimes it is so obvious that it misses fire completely.

Even so, it is a frequently provocative movie, well-acted by a cast entirely made up of GI Air Force personnel. Some of the original stage technicians recruited from the Air Forces have performed similar movie stunts and to them, 20th Century-Fox has added a crew of their best cinematic craftsmen.

Stray Leaves From Notebook Of Reporter About Town

"Red" Graham, who recalls that once he went to the West Coast and who at the slightest provocation recalls facts and fancies of days gone by the other day brought to light that "Doc" Roy Kitchen was just about the slickest thing on skates that Warren ever produced. Roy could cut a grapevine on the ice and performed other stunts and feats that would make Sonja Heine look to her laurels. He was not alone in his ability as there were a score or more of fine skaters "back in them old days."

"Fact but the creek used to be covered with good thick ice and the skaters were myriads. Girl skaters too there were and some of them were graceful as swans. The Schellhammer girls, the Bauman girls, Benzino Sisters and others were all adepts in figure skating and swept over the ice with ease.

And there were plenty of small fry bobbing around on skates, having difficulty with straps and things endeavoring to emulate the feats of the better skaters. To the best of recollection only a few dozen ever got into the waters of the stream and became tragedies of the skating season. Possibly not over four score and ten in the past 75 years. One of the old timers recalls that he never heard of one skater getting drowned. The blood pressure of the Ma's and Pa's back in "them good old days" was evidently not as high as it is now.

Anyway-skate. Its a heck of a sight better than tickering with the pin ball machines.

Remember when the short run made its way back and forth from Sheffield twice each day? When J. C. Magee, conductor and Mike Kennedy, brakeman manned the train. It left Warren early in the morning and was boarded daily by a score or more of men who owned oil leases in and about Clarendon and by others who did business in Sheffield. It made another round trip in the evening when the oil men came home. Plenty of fellows who worked on the leases rode the train and it was well filled every trip with shoppers who came to Warren in the morning and returned home in the evening burdened with bundles. Then came the trolley cars and the short run folded up. Now the trolleys are gone and you can get a bus everyone in a while. Its harder to get to Sheffield and return now than it was 5-years ago.

With the Bradford-Penn Refinery at Clarendon now shut down except for a bit of cleaning up Clarendon is at the lowest ebb its fortunes have ever been. This morning George Seavy, one of the natives of the famous oil town looked on the bright side and said "Clarendon never says die. When the snow melts and spring comes we'll all be there and alive and kicking."

With the talk of a spring flood in the air a lot of folks are shuffling the Complanter Indians off their land grant and placing them on lands here and there. The Complanter however have their eye on only a piece of ground that suits them and that is at the mouth of the Brokenstraw. The level acres there are tempting and the Braves and their Squaws have expressed an opinion that that is where they wish to be transferred if moved off the grounds. Chief Cornplanter received for keeping his warriors scalping knives sheathed. When the Kinzua dam is built the Cornplanter lands will be at the bottom of the big lake to be formed and the Indians must be satisfied when moved.

Chapter 18
THIS news sure is going to throw River Gap into a tail-spin," Hugh said heavily.

"River Gap must never know it, Hugh," she told him levelly. Hugh looked at her sharply, frowning.

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded.

"Two people have died from this fever, Hugh," she pointed out gravely. "There are two—perhaps more—patients in the hospital now. We have no way of knowing whether there may not be an epidemic. If the people of River Gap knew the truth about this fever there would be a panic almost worse than an epidemic. You see that, darling?"

"Yes, of course," Hugh finally agreed somberly.

"That's why only Jerry himself is to know, because he has to know how desperately important it is for him to get away for treatment to this place in the Caribbean," said Meredith, and added, fearfully, "I am to tell him—and I am to go with him."

Hugh sat bolt upright, the shock of that replacing the first shock of her revelation.

"Here now, wait a minute—what's all this? You're to go with him?" he protested, his brows drawing together in a scowl that she had rarely seen on his dark, good-looking face.

"I am to be assigned to the research base for three or four months, to study the treatment and the diseases in all its manifestations. Sooner or later more of our boys will be coming back, and there may be others like Jerry—and I can help them if I know what's wrong and the right treatment," she explained steadily.

HUGH'S mouth was set now and his eyes were angry. "Isn't that just a bit farfetched—the necessity of your being able to treat returning service men?" he asked, tightlipped. "I was under the impression that the government maintains some pretty fancy hospitals, rather adequately staffed, for the treatment of service men."

"Jerry had been in a hospital before he came home," she pointed out quietly. "And you see what has happened."

"I can see all that," he admitted finally, and reluctantly. "What I can't see is why it should be you. Why couldn't Frazier go?"

"Partly because River Gap is my own, Hugh, and because I expect to stay here all my life, as Jonathan did," she answered him steadily. "Stewart will stay until he is completely well. He may want to stay on longer, or he may want to go somewhere else where there are greater opportunities. We couldn't blame him if he did. Hugh—you know that. My destiny lies here; I have a responsibility to the people of River Gap that would never let me rest if I refused this assignment. And, Hugh, it is a great opportunity for me, a privilege to be allowed to go there and study and work. There isn't a young doctor in the country who wouldn't jump at the chance. I can't refuse it, Hugh."

Meredith knew that there was no more that she could say. She had known from the very first, since first she had known she loved Hugh, that a time must come when she would have to decide between him and the demands of her career.

She leaned towards him earnestly, seeking with all her heart for words that would make him understand, that would ease a little for him the pain and the loneliness of their separation.

"Hugh, my dearest," she said, her low voice shaken by the very earnestness of her desire to make him understand, "do you remember the day when Aunt Martha Peebles died?"

Hugh looked at her, and her heart cried out at the hostility in his eyes.

"Yes, of course," he answered her curtly.

"And do you remember that I asked you then if you thought I was making a mistake to go on being a doctor?" she asked.

SHE knew by the tightening of his jaw that he remembered, and she rushed on, "I asked you to help me decide then, Hugh! You said it was too great a responsibility for me to let the burden of that decision rest on you—that if you said I should stop being a doctor, I might very well marry you? I would have, Hugh—you knew that then. You know it now."

Hugh said through his teeth, fighting down the wave of warmth and tenderness that her words brought back. "I can't see the point of bringing all that up now."

"Can't you, darling? Then perhaps you've forgotten what you said to me then," she interrupted him quietly. "I've never forgotten, Hugh. I remember every word you said—I remember every tone of your voice. Hugh dearest, you said, 'You want to know what I think of you as a doctor, do you? Well, I myself, am living proof of your ability. I know quite well I'd not be here now, if it hadn't been for your efforts in my behalf; or if I were alive, I'd still be an allegedly hopeless invalid. And there are few drabber, drearier things to be, my pet! It's true you've lost a patient, but not through any fault of yours, or of Dr. Nichols'. These things happen and it's not given to us to know why. I don't believe anybody could have saved Aunt Martha. She was too far gone before anyone knew what was the matter with her. So I still think you are a mighty fine doctor with the promise of a great future. As successful a future as Jonathan—and you know what I mean by that.'"

Hugh said stubbornly, "I still think you are a fine doctor, with great promise—but I still can't see why it's necessary for you to rush off to the Caribbean for several months of special study."

Meredith rose to her feet and faced him gravely.

"Don't you, darling?" she asked very simply. "Then I'm afraid there isn't anything I can say to make you understand. Good night."

Chapter 19

SHE made ready for bed, and crept between the warm, soft blankets. She felt cold and tired and very unhappy. But she did not falter for a moment in her determination. She would leave tomorrow afternoon and she would be on her way for the most important assignment she had ever known.

If here at home, she left behind her a marriage that had broken to bits because of the demands of the profession she had adopted almost as a child—well, it was a thought that was bitter to the taste and that made her heart quail, but there was no turning back.

A long time afterwards she heard Hugh ascending the stairs, and lay waiting tensely. The door opened and he came in quietly, almost on tiptoe. Her mouth curled in a little smile; was it possible he could think she had gone to sleep?

She heard him stirring quietly about the room. Suddenly she put out her hand and switched on the bedside light and lay watching him, the soft yellow pool of light from the shaded lamp not quite reaching to her face, framed by the loosened masses of her dark hair outspread against the fat white pillow.

Hugh turned instantly and stood for a moment at the foot of the narrow maple bed in which she lay. "I'm—sorry, darling," he said, as though the words had been wrenched from him.

"It's all right, dearest," she said quietly, her voice husky, far from steady.

"It's just that I'm a selfish sort of guy," he told her awkwardly. "I'll miss you like the devil, but I can see now that it's right for you to go."

SHE sat up against her pillows and held out her arms to him, and he came and sat on the side of her bed and took her into his arms, holding her hard against him so that against her cheek she could feel the hard, uneven beating of his heart.

"Thank you for understanding," she said faintly.

His voice was dry, his smile mirthless.

"I've failed you all along the road, haven't I, darling?" he admitted.

"Oh, no, darling—don't say that. Don't think it," she cried out in a soft, low voice of protest.

She lifted her head suddenly and looked up at him.

"Say you want me to go, Hugh, dearest," she pleaded impulsively. "Say you're willing for me to go."

His face was white and set, his eyes already lonely.

"I can't, sweet. I can't say it without lying—and I can't ever lie to you!" he told her flatly.

"But I can say that I understand why you have to go and that I want you to do what you feel you have to do."

She smiled at him through quick tears. "I guess that's as good as I have a right to ask! But I'll come back as soon as I can—I promise."

He kissed her again and held her closely, and there was no further need for words.

In the morning, she packed swiftly. Summer clothes, a dress or two, but mostly hospital whites, because she would have little need for anything else.

"See you at lunch, dearest," he said as he stopped the car in front of that neat white building that still wore its twin signs, Jonathan Blake, M.D., and Meredith Blake, M.D. "Sure you don't want me to help you through the interview with Jerry, but I think I'd better handle it alone," she told him. She had come to the office only for the interview with Jerry, and she had never dreaded anything so much in all her life.

WHEN the "pick up truck" with the name, River Gap Fertilizer Co., lettered on the side stopped outside, and she saw Jerry coming up the drive, she braced herself and prayed for the right words with which to deal a blow that was so cruel she hardly dared contemplate it.

she saw were faintly yellowed about the iris—a sign, Major Stephenson had warned her, that she must always look for in the development of the germ, now dormant like a sleeping beast, in the patient's blood. "They telephoned me from the hospital that you wanted to see me."

Merry motioned him to a seat beside her desk. "I'm afraid, Jerry, that I have some pretty bad news for you. I very much hate being the one to tell you, but since I've just got back from Washington, and a conference with army doctors there, they seemed to feel, at the hospital here, that it's up to me to be the one."

Jerry tensed and waited, the puzzlement deepening in his eyes, his jaw setting itself.

"Jerry, you remember the day at the hospital when Dr. Nichols asked you to submit to an exhaustive examination?" she asked slowly, feeling her way.

JERRY frowned, and for just a moment fear leaked at his eyes, and was gone.

"Sure," he answered almost truculently. "And Dr. Nichols gave me a clean bill of health."

"I'm sorrier than I can ever tell you, Jerry, but—Dr. Nichols—all of us—were mistaken," she said slowly, painfully.

There was an instant of silence and she saw the color leave his face in a slow, receding tide, saw the strong, hard line of his young jaw leap into greater prominence and his eyes grow wary.

"You mean I'm not—okay?" he demanded.

"I'm afraid not, Jerry," she told him calmly.

Again Jerry was still for a moment. Then he demanded defiantly, "Okay—what's wrong with me? I feel fine!"

ness galore. This winter has called for the use of carloads of cinders on the streets and when the spring rains begin miles of sewers will be clogged up. However the borough has the equipment and can go to town in getting the sewers open. Possibly never in the history of the town have so many cinders been scattered on the streets and placed in ruts as this year.

Incidentally it would be interesting to know just how much this prolonged snow storm has cost Day Warren due to lowering streets and hauling snow. Make a guess.

Business Group's Program Topic Is Nurse's Aide Unit

Fifty-three members and guests of Warren Business and Professional Women's Club attended the January dinner meeting held at six o'clock last evening at the YWCA activities building. Attractive blue and yellow table decorations centered about a series of snowmen and the Happy New Year motif.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. William Schellhammer, who spoke of the work of the Nurse's Aide Corps, beginning with the first class in 1941, requirements and training regulations, some interesting events from her own experiences and organization of the several classes into a corps, of which she was the first captain. She mentioned that of 105 aides who have been graduated, 54 gave volunteer service in the month of December and in all the aide corps has given 30,000 volunteer hours of service as of December 1. The aides in the hospital at various local and state clinics and at Red Cross blood banks. A number have their 1,000 hour ribbons one has nearly 2,000 hours on her record and several have 1,500 hours.

In concluding, Mrs. Schellhammer expressed the wish that those women who have already had aide training and have not been active in recent months, would again assist with the increasing amount of work to be done. She stated there is scarcity of volunteers for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, particularly.

In the business meeting which followed, President Louise Nelly called for reports from Violet Peterson, Inez Leake and Margaret Holmes, the latter announcing one membership application. Letters of thanks for Christmas gifts sent to the Hoffman Home were passed about for reading and future activities were discussed briefly. Members were reminded to do their share in support of the blood bank, wastepaper and tin can salvage drives.

Concluding, Margaret Drivas and Edith Erickson were awarded special prizes by the committee chairman, Ethel Patchen.

Local Relatives Learn of Wedding Of Tulsa Resident

Many here will read with interest the following account from a Tulsa, Okla., daily of the recent marriage of Mary Elizabeth Campbell, granddaughter of Mrs. D. J. McNamara, 304 Union street, and niece of Miss Grace Campbell, Hickory street:

In a beautiful and impressive ceremony, Wednesday, December 27, at 4:30 p. m. in Christ the King Catholic church, Miss Mary Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Campbell, 2207 East 19th street, became the bride of Harry Kramer Wieman, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Wieman, of DeSoto, Mo.

Monsignor Daniel C. Fletcher performed the ceremony before an altar banked with poinsettias and greenery. Mrs. John Stafford, organist, played a program of nuptial music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite gown of white faille, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, tight fitting bodice, long fitted sleeves ending in a point over the wrist. The full gathered skirt was corded and had a full train. Her fingertip veil of imported net fell from a band of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book, topped by white camellias with streamers of white ribbon tied with stephanotis.

Mrs. Robert I. Bruce was matron of honor and wore a gown of ice blue taffeta with sweetheart neckline, tight fitting bodice and three-quarter length sleeves. Miss Betty Jane Wieman, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and wore a gown of American beauty taffeta with a square neckline and tight fitting bodice. Miss Gloria Downs and Miss Sarah Ann Hill were bridesmaids and wore identical gowns of rose taffeta, fashioned on the same lines. Attendants all carried small colonial bouquets of winter flowers to match their dresses.

Pfc. John McGrath was best man and ushers were Robert R. Park, Jr., Harry A. Campbell, Jr., and Jim Campbell, both cousins of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were hosts at a reception in their home immediately following the ceremony.

After a short wedding trip, the young couple will make their home at the Westmoreland apartments, 5330 Pershing, St. Louis, Mo.

STUDY GROUP IS TOLD ABOUT DRUGS
 The Pre-school Child Study Group held its regular meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Paul Harrington. After parking their cars to the satisfaction of bus drivers and city police, members listened to a very interesting and instructive talk on "Home Remedies" by William T. McCausland.

His examples of potent drugs and their uses were presented in an effort to show how futile home remedies really are. Some of the drugs he explained in detail, particularly opium and digitalis. He closed with a discussion period in which he was very ready to answer questions.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Gerald Johnson and Mrs. Harold Johnson in serving refreshments.

 Icebox Ginger Snaps

(Recipes serve four)

Sweet Potato Shepherd's Pie
 2 cups leftover meat, cut up or ground
 1 tablespoon parsley, minced
 1 cup stewed tomatoes
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 1 cup sweet potatoes, mashed
 1 tablespoon margarine

Combine meat, parsley, tomatoes, salt and pepper and mix well. Pour into greased casserole. To with mashed sweet potatoes and dot top with margarine. Bake a 400° until top is brown (about 30 minutes).

Ginger Pears
 4 pears
 1 cup sugar
 ½ cup water
 ¼ cup lime juice
 1 teaspoon grated lime rind
 1 teaspoon orange rind
 1 teaspoon chopped preserved ginger
 ¼ cup orange juice

Combine all ingredients except pears and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring until sugar has dissolved. Cook five minutes without stirring. Add peeled halved and cored pears, cover and poach over very low heat for 2 minutes, or until pears are tender.

Icebox Ginger Snaps
 ¼ cup margarine
 ½ cup sugar
 ½ cup whole bran
 2 cups sifted flour
 1½ teaspoons salt
 1½ teaspoons ginger
 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
 1½ teaspoons flour

Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Add molasses and bran and stir well. Sift to gether flour, soda, salt, ginger and cinnamon. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture slowly, mixing together well. Knead and shape into roll about 1½ inches diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and store in icebox until firm. Slice very thin and bake on ungreased baking sheet at 357° about ten minutes.

Tale of Supply Lines Found In Dispatch From Ninth AAF

From a 9th Air Force Service Command unit somewhere in France comes the following dispatch to bring news of Pvt. Forest C. Curtis, who, since shortly after D-Day, has been driving the supply lanes to and from front lines of our swiftly advancing armies in the European Theatre of Operations:

Assigned to a quartermaster truck group which specializes in hauling tons of bombs, munitions and supplies "round-the-clock" to advance depots and air strips of the Ninth Air Force, Pvt. Curtis has followed American troops through France, Luxembourg, Belgium and into Germany.

While the Cherbourg Peninsula was still the scene of raging battles, Curtis drove his truck along the lines carrying supplies to the troops. During the battle of St. Lo, just prior to the historic breakthrough by General Patton's tank men, the famed right end run which carried the Allies swiftly across France to the Reich borders, Curtis exchanged his truck for a bazooka gun, and, aided by his buddy, Private Bill Knox of Chicago, Ill., helped to smash German resistance in that sector.

Across France, into Belgium, Luxembourg and finally Germany itself trailed Pvt. Curtis. Snipers fired on his truck as he sped to the front. Night time held the most perils.

"We had to be doubly alert all the time, but particularly at night," he said. "Civilians along the roads were not to be trusted, for too often they turned out to be enemy soldiers. Many of our fellows were shot up by these 'civilians'."

Lieut. Lindell Pilot On B-24

And Lt. Arthur E. Lindell, 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Lindell, of Russell, has arrived in Italy to fly combat missions with a B-24 Liberator group, it is learned in a special dispatch from 15th AAF headquarters in that country.

Lt. Lindell, 15th Air Force pilot, is member of a veteran group which took part in air attacks that pounded Balkan targets in Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Greece. Recently Lindell flew with his unit into Germany, where they fought through a heavy flak barrage to heavily damage an important target in the Vienna area.

A graduate of Russell High School, Lindell studied at Westminster College before he entered the Air Forces in April, 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Sivi, Youngville Rd 1, have had a letter from their son, Pfc. Andrew, Jr., who is serving under Patton in Germany, that he was sending them home a large Nazi battle flag taken recently in combat.

IT'S A PAPER SCRAP, ALL RIGHT

by ERNIE PYLE

How many times have you hunted around for a little piece of paper because you wanted to write somebody a note, and there just wasn't any paper to be found?

That would be an even more awkward situation if what you wanted to write was a message for reinforcements to get the hell up to the hot corner where you were and help hold off that wave of Nazi SS troopers who are just across the meadow, studying you through the sights of Spandau machine guns.

I suppose millions of message pads must have been printed by the War Department, but plenty of times historic messages have been written on the backs of laundry slips, just the same. Paper and articles made from it are among the most expendable kinds of war equipment now being supplied to the troops. Which, I suppose, is why waste paper is today the number one war material shortage on the home front.

Until you arrive in an active zone, you've simply no idea how many tons of paper are needed to get to an army all the stuff it needs. . . and there are about 700,000 things our Army needs right now, and will keep on needing till they march into Berlin and Tokyo. It's not just the ammunition, it's everything else a soldier wants at one time or another, in battle or after. K and C rations are paper-boxed, so is the new U ration which first turned up in North Africa, containing practically everything you'd find in any well-provisioned overnight bag.

I remember the camp of a tank unit just back from weeks of continuous line plunges at the front. All around it there were piles of paper cartons and wrappings, some almost as high as your head.

I recall a hard-won field but lately taken by some of our paratroopers not long after D-day. It was spangled with the

WOUNDED IN GERMANY

Mrs. David Ferry, of Ludlow, has received word from the War Department that her husband, technician fifth grade, was slightly wounded in action in Germany on December 17 and is now in a hospital in England. T/5 Ferry enlisted with the National Guards in February, 1941, but was transferred from Company I to Headquarters Company. He has been overseas since September, 1943.

Mrs. Frank Gruttaria, Prospect street, and Mrs. Anthony Gruttaria, 220 Walnut street, received word on Tuesday of the safe arrival of their husbands, brothers and both privates in the U. S. Marine Corps, at an undisclosed destination somewhere in the South Pacific.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. William Van Ord, of Russell, that their third son to enter service, Orrie Van Ord, is now located at Camp Blanding, Fla., as a member of an infantry company. Paul, an elder brother, now serving his fifth year in the army, is in France, and the other brother, Leon, who is in the navy, is presently located at Norfolk, Va., after seeing service overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ludwick of Lander have received word that their son Myron has been promoted to Sergeant. Sgt. Ludwick is a crew member of a B29 at Salpan.

R. W. Darling, petty officer with the Navy Seabees, has returned to Camp Parks, Calif., for further assignment after a 30-day furlough at home.

Thomas "Bud" Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams, 15 Lacy street, who enlisted in the navy two weeks ago, received today his orders to report to Erie tomorrow for training assignment. Young Williams, who leaves this evening, has been associated with his father in the Williams Solvage Company.

Rotary Plow Opening NYC Railroad Line

Advices received in Warren this morning are to the effect that a big rotary snow plow is being used to remove the drifted snow from the railroad near Laona and other points where cuts are filled. One report states that a lineman stood on the snow and repaired wires without having to climb a pole. Ice on the rails had been well chipped off and the plow, lather and ditcher will be sent through to Falconer. It will then return to Dunkirk. A snow plow will be sent over the line from Falconer to Titusville and the lower end of the line opened. The plow is expected to make the trip this afternoon so the road can be placed in operation tonight.

It is also reported that there is not a great accumulation of freight in the Dunkirk yard to be moved into this section. The tie up is evidently east or west of Dunkirk and it is thought to be in the Buffalo yards.

A freight train coming into Warren last evening from Falconer was forced to stop three times on Fourth avenue by automobiles caught in the ruts there. The drivers were unable to pull out of the path of the train and to vert a collision the train had to stop.

Organization Announced By Trinity Vestry

The following elections and appointments were made at the organization of the vestry of the Trinity Memorial church:

Walter E. Besty was elected senior warden of the parish; J. Howard Alexander was appointed junior warden by the rector; Robert H. Trusler was elected clerk of the vestry. John Luce took his place on the vestry replacing Guy A. Edris, who asked that his name be removed as vestryman for 1945 because of other commitments.

Committees appointed by the rector were: church altar—J. Albert Rockwell, James K. Bell; ushers—John Luce, chairman; music—Mrs. Anna Rockwell, Mrs. Harold Blair, Mrs. Harry Long, Mrs. William Robertson; finance—Walter Besty, chairman, Edward Branch, Chester Allen, Henry McConnell, John Luce; property—William Greaves, chairman, Sylvanus G. Davis, Chester Allen, Henry McConnell; house—Mrs. Chester Allen, Mrs. Treat Davidson, Mrs. Edward Branch, Mrs. Edwin Ley, Mrs. J. W. A. Luce, Mrs. Louis P. Davis; parish house and property improvement—Harry Lewis, J. Herbert Alexander, Chester Allen, John Luce; publicity—E. C. Lowrey, William Rice; emergency relief—Edwin Ley appointed chairman by the rector. Mrs. Richard Dawson, elected by the congregation, Mrs. H. Ross Fisher, elected by the vestry. Donald Conaway was elected chairman of the Boy Scouts.

Further plans were made for the work of the parish during the coming months.

OF COURSE YOU LIKE TO BE RAY! EVERY DAY, ALL MONTH

Unless you have some underlying organic condition that requires consultation with your doctor there may be no need of your suffering from "monthly" troubles. Thousands of girls and women have found blessed relief from periodic functional pains, cramps, headaches and nervousness in Chi-Ches-Ters Pills. Taken as directed, preferably two or three days before your time, they tend to relax the muscular contraction that often causes the distress. They contain no narcotics, nor habit-forming drugs. But Chi-Ches-Ters Pills do have an iron ingredient that helps to promote resistance and energy. So, ask your druggist for Chi-Ches-Ters Pills, and accept no substitute. Caution: Use only as directed.

One car was completely demolished and another damaged in a three-way crash which occurred yesterday on the Pennsylvania railroad crossing at Clarendon, according to State Police reports.

James W. Haight, of Clarendon, going north on the blacktop road, stalled his 1934 Chevrolet sedan on the tracks when his brakes froze and he attempted to back off the tracks. An approaching freight train struck his car and carried it about 30 feet west until it struck the parked car of R. E. Christie, of Irvine. Haight jumped clear of the stalled car and was not injured in any way.

The Christie car was damaged to the extent of about $40, having been struck on the left front fender, bumper, grill and headlight.

Fire Destroys Ongley Home at Irvine Today

Fire starting from some unknown cause destroyed the home of Raymond Ongley at Irvine this morning. The Youngville fire department responded, but the structure burned to the ground. Most of the contents were destroyed.

The home was the first on the left of the road going to Irvine on the east side of the Brokenstraw creek. It was of frame construction and burned rapidly. When the firemen arrived it was engulfed in flames.

Neighbors and friends in the vicinity gave all possible assistance to check the flames, but their work was in vain.

Undoubtedly many of them had never seen a sled with horse attached before and they were having a grand time hopping on and off the sled.

BLIZZARD HURT BUSINESS

The blizzard which hit December 11th and forgot to go entirely away played hob with business conditions in the Pittsburgh district, a report of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh, showed today. The business index plummeted from 172.3 per cent of the 1935-39 average in November to 165.4 per cent in December. It was 170.5 in December, 1943. For the last week of the year, steel mill operations hit their lowest level in four years.

Ice Reported Heavy Along Local River

Ice on the river is reported to be heavy on the Allegheny river. At points up stream ice has been cut that measured 14 inches in thickness. When it moves trouble is feared without thawing it to such a degree that it will move readily and break up into small bits.

At many places along the river the snow has drifted as high as the banks of the stream and a stranger would not know that a river ran in the vicinity. The snow so hides the banks of the streams that it looks like a continuation of a field.

A rain of some duration or a sudden thaw will send the river upward rapidly and result in a flood.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE

Good progress is being made on the alterations and other work on the new Osteopathic Hospital on Pennsylvania avenue, east. Much of the work has been completed and painters are now at work. It is expected that the hospital will be in readiness for opening within the next few weeks.

Lord's Last - Second Basket Defeats Emporium; Forgers Top the Local Sylvania Quint

Two of the fastest and scrappiest ball games ever to be played on the YMCA court were unleashed last night with the National Forge team concentrating on a fourth period rally to cop a four point decision from the local Sylvania quint, and in the main attraction of the night, some 100 fans witnessed the Struthers Wells crew blast out a second half spurge to down the Emporium Sylvania team on a last second field goal by Allie Lord. In the opener, fans had sufficient reason to be well pleased, but the second battle proved to be the high point of the evening.

In the first game, the Forge team jumped off to a 7-3 lead at the first period mark, but its lead was shortened when Sylvania sent their first five into the fray and brought the margin to but one point for the forgers. Each team managed to put in twelve points in the third stanza to keep the Forge ahead by one point, 23-22. The final quarter was nip-and-tuck all the way, first one bunch going ahead and then the other. Gall Nelson proved to be the spotlight for the Forge quint when he entered play following Nick Creola's exit via the personal foul rule. Creola kept the Forge machine intact until he went out and Nelson entered and scored seven points in the final minutes which kept the Irvine bunch in front by a slight margin.

The Emporium-Struthers battle, and it was, couldn't have been better in the fact that neither team could gain a solid, substantial lead. The spark of the Emporium quint was Wicke, the right forward. Wicke has been seen in action in Warren a good many times and at times was able to show his ability on the score sheet, but his action was limited through the magnificent defense, as well as offensive, game played by Willard Zerbe. Zerbe kept Wicke well under control the entire game and managed to pop in two last minute baskets which aided in the Warren win. Another Sylvaniaian who was spectacular on the court was Cedargreen, a former Northwestern cage great, who was ably matched by Allie Lord.

At the end of a tight first period, the locals were on the short end of an 11-7 count, but crept up to within two points of the Emporium crew at halftime, 21-19. It was all action in both halves, and the Struthers' offensive and defensive attacks were almost perfectly coordinated.

The deadliest action didn't begin until mid-way in the third stanza when Akeley dropped in a one-handed shot to put the locals in front, 25-24. Lord and Chase each followed to increase their margin to 5 points, and at the end of that period the score stood 29-26. Sylvania tied up the ball game, and Wicke each dropped in a two-pointer, and Allie Lord dumped in a goal as the Forge went ahead again. Chase added another to make a four point lead before Wicke scored another to cut the lead to but two markers. The crowd was in continuous satisfaction as play became extremely fast and furious in the closing minutes.

Beehive houses, primitive dwellings in Scotland and Ireland, were conical and constructed of stones without mortar.

Plants grown in houses should be watered thoroughly and then not watered again until the surface of the soil is thoroughly dry.

James Russell Lowell was the god-father of Virginia Woolf, English novelist, critic, and essayist.

BEHIND THE LINES

Spectator's View
Sam Cosmano's game of 299, rolled Monday night in the City League, is the highest game rolled since Pete Juliano's 300 perfect game in 1938, rolled in Inter-City League competition at the Arcade alleys against a Bradford team. Sam's 299 is the highest ever rolled in City League competition and it's the highest he ever rolled. He has 14 two games of 290 and several other big games above 270 in his years of bowling. His 11 strikes were all in the 1-3 pocket and were all beautiful strikes. On the 12th ball the patrons and spectators were all focused on number seven alley, where Sammie was bowling his last frame and last ball. It was so quiet in the building at that particular moment that a whisper could have been heard. Everybody commented on Sam's coolness in delivering the sphere in the last frame. Many spectators probably talked the game to the ones at home until the wee hours of the morning. Sam also helped his team in setting a new high single game of 1056 and team total of 2937. We the spectators were all pulling for Sam and a 300 score. Maybe the next time, Sam.

First Round Of YM League Opens Wed.

The first round of the YMCA City League gets under way tomorrow night on the Y court with two good games booked for the community's cage fans. The National Forge quint takes on the Blomquist aggregation in the opener at 7:30 and the Baker five tangles with the Sylvania crew at 8:30. Nick Creola, league president, stated this morning that he expects some fine competition in this first half and that crowds should be much better than during the warm-up round. Struthers Wells, winner of the warm-up match, takes the bye and will not see action until next Thursday.

The complete first round schedule has been mapped out by the league officials and managers and was issued this morning by Program Secretary Lloyd Shirk. Mr. Shirk has also expressed his belief in a fine first half and that the seating and standing capacity can accommodate around 200 fans.

A Complete first round card follows: January 11—Forge vs. Blomquist and Sylvania vs. Bakers; 18—Sylvania vs. Blomquist and Struthers vs. Bakers; 25—Struthers vs. Blomquist and Sylvania vs. Forge; February 1—Bakers vs. Forge and Sylvania vs. Struthers; 8—Bakers vs. Blomquist and Struthers vs. Forge. Teams named first play in the 7:30 encounters and the latter named quint play the 8:30 nightcap.

Walked into Don Finley's yesterday to see if there was any sport news that could be picked up. Much to my regret, there was little; but, I did meet with a few of the Field and Stream Club members who had plenty to offer on the subject of "My Operation." Well, I couldn't say "no," so we all settled over a bottle of coke and started chattering about this operation and that and—well, you know how it goes.

About the only thing I have on my mind this morning is the two games played at the YM last night. In the Forge-Sylvania battle it was a question of who was going to get the lone needed basket first. And the Forge got it. In the first cap, it was mostly a question of who could take the most and who was the smarter of the two teams. Not belittling the Emporium quint in any way, though. They had a fine ball club. But so does the Struthers team. And they were without the services of Ted Kaminski and Dick Finley. Kaminski, the soldier stationed at Bull Hill, is spending a seven-day furlough, but will be back in action next week. The basketball followers who missed that last game last night really missed something. And to add to the already colorful ball game, there was Dick Hines, who did a very commendable job at handling the game.

Among some of the regular stand-bys of the YM loop I noticed last night were High School Mentor Joe Massa, who was well

Girls' League Games Tonite On YW Court

The YWCA Girls' cage loop furnishes the only activity in the community tonight with the National Forge league-leaders battling it out with the Thomas Coupling set and The New Process crew taking on the Struthers Wells team.

Miss Mary Church, program director at the YW, and Onaida Sheffer, league prexy, stated that the league has been progressing in fine shape and that the interest has increased greatly since the formation of the new loop. Seating and standing accommodations have been multiplied and there is plenty of room for spectators.

In the opener tonight, the high-scoring National Forge team meets the Thomas Coupling six at 7 p. m. in what is expected to be the closest battle yet this season. In the main tilt, New Process and Struthers clash in what will be another close contest. Several of the teams have sported new uniforms, and the Forge aggregation will have their new uniforms in their game this evening.

MISSING SECOND TIME
ARMY AIR ACE SAFE

Marshall, N. C., Jan. 10—(P)—Reported missing a second time in action over China, Lt. Col. Edward F. Rector, the army ace, has turned up safe again, his parents have been notified.
Rector, a veteran of Gen. Clair Chennault's Flying Tigers, was shot down and reported lost by fellow fliers on his first tour of duty in China.
Then, a week ago, the war department announced he had been missing since December 19. Rector is credited with downing at least 12 Japanese planes.

NEW SNOW REMOVER

Pittsburgh, Jan. 10—(P)—Allegheny county commissioners have instructed Airport Director J. T. Brooks to ask the army for a flame thrower to remove hard-packed ice and snow from the city-county airport. Chairman John J. Jane said two huge power shovels were of no avail against the hardened mass.

Japan has 54 active volcanoes.

CIVIL WAR VET DIES

Union City, Jan. 10—(P)—Funeral services will be held Thursday for Logan J. Dyke, last Civil War veteran in Erie county. He would have been 103 years old Jan. 28.

Lucas was placed on the committee with Senator Hill of Alabama and Hatch of New Mexico, both staunch Roosevelt supporters, to fill three vacancies.

Leyte is regarded as indicative of the fierce resistance which the Japanese will put up now that their innermost bastions are threatened.

There is no doubt that the land campaign on Luzon, bringing American forces into combat with the best land troops the enemy can muster, will be fairly prolonged and intense.

In a sense the return to Luzon restores American strategy to the position from which it started when the war opened three years ago.

Tank-Led Spearheads Drive
To A Climactic Showdown
Fight for the Philippines

Ryukyu, Bonin and Volcano Islands, Formosa and Luzon.

London, Jan. 10—(P)—A Tokyo dispatch relayed by Berlin today quoted Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, former Japanese commander-in-chief in the Philippines, as saying that with the American landing on Luzon "it may be taken for granted that the Japanese navy now will go into action and deal blows in this theatre of operations."

The dispatch, reported by the German news agency DNB, said Homma declared:

"Immediate countermeasures are essential, particularly as the enemy may make further landings which would expose Manila to fresh dangers."

"The moment for determined action is at hand."

front before a British drive, but the staff officer said it was "too early to say that the enemy is pulling out of the whole salient."

Bure has been reoccupied and several other villages seized.

The Germans were reported bringing in tanks from the Bastogne area of their southern flank to meet the threat to the road. The waist of the salient has been compressed to a nine-mile width, and bitter fighting was reported continuing west of Bastogne, where the U. S. Third Army threw back a Nazi tank-led counterattack, destroying nine of 18 tanks.

Ten miles west of the American thrust toward the Germans' main escape highway in Belgium, the U. S. Second Armored Division yesterday waged a bitter battle with German armor for Samree, a crossroads hamlet which controls secondary roads leading southeast toward Houffalize.

On the U. S. Seventh Army front the Germans seemed to have shifted the main weight of their assaults to the area south of Wissembourg, where they lost 11 tanks in three small but fierce attacks.

Negotiation of a truce for evacuation of more French civilians from the area of St. Nazaire indicated the Germans intended to hold bitterly to pockets along the French Atlantic coast. About 100,000 Germans were estimated to be in these pockets, including Lorient, La Rochelle and those blocking the port of Bordeaux.

Jan. 8 in the Formosa-Ryukyu area, there was no enemy opposition in the air but 17 planes were destroyed and 17 damaged on the ground.

Jan. 5 and 6 in the Luzon sector, three medium cargo ships, four small coastal cargo ships and five huggers were sunk. A large cargo ship, three medium cargo ships, nine small coastal cargo, a tug and 15 small craft were damaged.

Jan. 8 in the Formosa-Ryukyu area, 14 small ships were sunk, 17 small ships and huggers damaged and a large tanker left burning.

Carrier fighters, dive bombers and torpedo planes dealt the blows. Fifteen American planes were lost.

GENERAL ELECTION IS PROMISED IN GREECE

London, Jan. 10—(P)—Premier Nicholas Plastiras of Greece today promised his people a general election "at the earliest possible moment" to name a new assembly and decide the question of a permanent government.

In a statement released through the British foreign office, the premier said the duty of his new government was "to care for the interests of the Greek nation until such time as they can express their own will freely and without fear by genuine and uninfluenced elections."

CARBON MONOXIDE
CAUSES TWO DEATHS

Hanheim, Jan. 10—(P)—The bodies of Walter G. Rohrer, 40, Hanheim, and Mary E. Allinger, 33, Lancaster Junction, were found in a car parked in a closed garage here last night.

Dr. J. D. Hershey, deputy coroner, said death was accidental and caused by carbon monoxide gas.

He said there was "evidence they had kept a love tryst and started the motor to keep the car warm."

Both were unmarried.

Hershey said they died late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

What It Means

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON — Pessimism over the length of the war means new trends in America's war economy.

These trends — emerging with the new year — shape up as follows:

Materials: New shortages arising. Copper because of more bullet jackets, lead because the country has dipped too deeply into its stockpile. The United States will "borrow" Canadian brass mill capacity, may even use steel mills to make brass strip for cartridges. Lumber still tight. Aluminum very easy, with only half the country's production capacity in use. Steel "fairly well balanced" with demands.

Construction: Another deep drop ahead if war on two fronts continues through the year — $3,150,000,000 as against 1944's $3,840,000,000. If Germany collapses before spring, about the same as last year.

But new residential construction is getting a boost, with 100,000 new homes of nearly prewar quality scheduled in congested cities.

Spending: Still going up. War expenditures totaled $85,000,000,000 in 1944, including construction, pay and subsistence of troops and other items not included in munitions outlay.

But consumer spending outstripped that staggering total, rising to $97,000,000,000, or 6 per cent over 1943. Both figures are the highest on record. War outlay brings the cost of World War II to date to an estimated total exceeding $226,473,000,000, not counting pre-war "defense" outlays.

War production labor force: Still declining, from 10,400,000 war workers at the peak in November, 1943, to 9,300,000 at last reports. Due mainly to greater plant efficiency, but the trend may be arrested by the "freeze" on civilian output. Cutbacks in war production, expected in great volume through the fall and feared as a cause of unemployment, failed to materialize in anything like expected volume. Intensive labor recruiting is ahead. Some officials want laws to enforce manpower rules, but legislation is unlikely.

Management of the war effort: Delivered lock, stock and barrel into the hands of James F. Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. A perceptible tendency of the military to encroach on civilian management of the home-front effort was underscored by Byrnes' choice of Maj. Gen. Lucius Clay, former procurement chief of the Army Service Forces, as his chief deputy.

Byrnes' "produce or fight" decree of a few weeks ago — which threatened military service for men 26 to 38 who are not contributing to the cause of victory — indicated his readiness to go above and beyond the efforts of the War Manpower Commission.

In his earlier days as mobilization director, Byrnes settled disputes and did little else. Now, for the first time, it appears that a single person has accepted full responsibility for making war policy and charting the demobilization when the war is won.

Social Science Club Members Hear Paper on Jewish Problem

"Our Neighbors the Jews" was the subject of a timely address given before the January meeting of the Social Science Club by the Rev. Beecher M. Rutledge, rector of Trinity Memorial church, in which he performed an important service by clarifying muddled thinking on anti-Semitism in general and in this country in particular.

In his comprehensive study about this vital subject, about which propaganda, emotional thinking, prejudices inherited from the Middle Ages and other factors have created confusion even in the minds of Americans of good will, Mr. Rutledge assured his listeners that it is no academic question but one of the most immediate and dangerous menaces out United States faces today.

It was made clear Mr. Rutledge was not preaching tolerance for things or people we may not like, but rather portraying for better understanding some of our neighbors so we may become better neighbors the Jews, of whom it has been said are a people at once the best and least known among the civilized peoples of the world. Far from being confined to Nazi and Fascist lands who have brought hatred and persecution to such depths, he declared no country entirely free from this stain of intolerance and persecution. Brutality against the Jews of Poland had before the German invasion reached a state hardly better than in Germany, encouraged by the authorities. Likewise Bulgaria. Social and legislative repression against Jews in France was halted only by the war. England and her colonies do not have a good record.

Soviet Russia's hatred of Jews is a thousand times stronger than under the Czar, going so far practically all Jewish members of the government have been dismissed, exiled or shot. Norway is troubled with general hatred. Sweden's record is good. Holland, by contrast, is the only country with practically no anti-Jewish feeling. Latin American countries are not good. Least self-righteousness and complacency numb Americans. Rev. Rutledge recited in brief some of the many un-American un-Christian restrictions, persecutions, discriminations and oppressions harassing Jews in the United States. Students of the subject reach the inevitable conclusion, he pointed out, that the Jews are not a race, but a people bound together by religion, and represent every racial and national characteristic from Mongol, Anglo-Saxon, Latin and Oriental. No physical description called typically Jewish is not equally applicable to those of every other race and nation and religion.

Mr. Rutledge, concluding, declared that long study of the subject will reveal that the only difference that can be found existing between Jews and Gentiles is one of religion. "In this country," he insisted, "we have absolutely no excuse for persecuting members of any religion or even those of no religion! If those who call themselves Christians are certain what they believe is true; of Christ has transformed their lives so that faith in Him is so vital and real that we love all people, Jews as well as Gentiles, and to an extent that if necessary we be willing to sacrifice, to deny ourselves, then there will exist no problem for us."

He warned against complacency, saying, "all Christians and Jews must exert every effort to overcome the diabolical growth of Hitlerite ideas and persecution of religious minorities in America. Once this grows we will see a repetition on a more terrifying scale of the outbreak of organized and unorganized persecution in this country of Catholics, Negroes, foreign born minorities, Jews and political minorities in the United States of which the Ku Klux Klan, United Brotherhood of America, Black Legion and other vicious terrorist organizations were symptomatic. Every real American must inform himself and courageously combat anti-Semitism with unflinching energy, a task requiring true understanding and good will, truth and justice."

A most interesting forum discussion followed the paper. Resolutions in memory of Robert W. Mackay read by Herbert Harris, chairman of a committee appointed at the last meeting, were adopted, and a suitable memorial volume ordered placed in the Warren Public Library in his memory. Hosts for the evening included Dr. Leroy B. Campbell, Robert Capell, E. Ross Carlson, W. S. Clark, M. F. Cowden and Wallace Cowden.

The paper for the February meeting will be "Mental Hygiene in Business and Industry" by Warren E. Miller of the Warren High School faculty.

YOUNGSVILLE

Youngsville, Jan. 9—Youngsville Business and Professional Woman's Club met in regular session on Monday evening in the Ruby Tea Room with Mrs. Rose Hubert presiding. Reports were given of the various departments of the local order and an interesting letter from the Pennsylvania State president of the Business and Professional Women, Mrs. Katherine S. Carpenter of Jersey Shore, Pa., was read.

Plans were discussed concerning the District Spring meeting which will be held in Youngsville on Saturday April 14. With a banquet an evening event.

Miss Golda Hill, chairman of the financial department of the local club reported over sixty dollars cleared on the two day rummage sale. She also suggested a social event to be held soon. This will probably take the form of telephone bridge, modified so as to include several card games, and other games if desired.

Miss Matilda Kamber conducted the social period which included a quiz period. With questions based on current events and also history and etiquette. The period proved instructive as well as creating much merriment. Peanuts were used instead of dollars as rewards for correct answers.

LOCALS

Walter Aaron and daughter, Miss Margaret, left this week for Pittsburgh where they with Mrs. Walter Aaron attended the funeral service of Mrs. Aaron's mother Mrs. O'Brien who died in that city after a long illness. Mrs. Aaron had been for some time caring for her mother in Pittsburgh.

¡Qué gran vida, amigos! ... Have a Coke

(WHAT A LIFE, PALS!)

... or being ambassadors of good will in Panama

Your American sailor gets around. In Panama, Pearl Harbor, Port Moresby or Providence, you'll find him always being himself—a friendly, good-natured American. Have a Coke is his easy-going invitation to share some fun or a song and refreshment with all comers. It's his way of saying, Relax, let's take it easy. And that's just what it means when you offer ice-cold Coca-Cola in your own home. Yes, in many lands, Coca-Cola and the pause that refreshes stand for friendliness with a good old American accent.
